Mormons and Ardent Spirits Lecture

Nov 11, 5-6 pm
Education & Collections Center
parkcityhistory.org
In 1847, when the Mormons arrived in Utah, ardent spirits were part of the local craft which was enjoyed by all, Mormon and gentile alike. In 1851, Brigham Young had a revelation that The Saints should no longer imbibe. Oh, and he also monopolized the liquor trade in a highly successful revenue generating scheme for him and his church. The Dryer family was awarded the Idaho franchise of the monopoly. Troy Dryer and Sandy Brumley will describe the history of local spirits distribution, a whisky known as "Valley Tan," through early Utah and into the Park City Silver Rush.
